TO THE CONTRIBUTORS :

On the western slope of the Alleghenies, near their base, nestled the prosperous and busy city of Johnstown, with its neighboring villages, for a distance of twelve or fifteen miles in the valley of the beautiful Conemaugh, when on the last day of May, 1889, at four o'clock in the afternoon, it was almost swept from the face of the earth by the most terrible flood ever known in this country, caused not only by the heavy rains of many days, but by the bursting of the South Fork Dam, which let out a body of water of about 700 acres, sixty or seventy feet deep, causing death and destruction for more than twenty miles below, with a loss of life and property unprecedented in the history of our country. In the morning there stood hundreds of substantial and beautiful houses, streets of warehouses filled with merchandise, hotels, churches, schools and factories ; when night came there was but a plain of gravel and mud, splintered fragments of houses, scattered piles of bricks, masses of massive machinery torn from their beds in the factories and lying in shapeless piles of ruin, scattered and broken household furnishing, costly merchandise, and thousands of corpses buried in the mud and water.

In one short and terrible hour more than sixteen hundred houses, filled with men, women and children, were wrecked and ruined. The loss of life will never be known, but is certainly between two thousand and three thousand. The round house of the Pennsylvania Railroad, with over thirty huge locomotives, the great Gautier Steel Works, woolen and grist mills, scores of factories, iron and wooden bridges, hotels, stores and dwellings, two passenger trains, with their living freight, locomotives and hundreds of freight cars, stables and teams in harness, all drifted into one mass against the stone bridge of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and were then by the resistless force of the flood piled high above the raging waters, where for thirty hours fire added its horror to the scene, consuming both the living and the dead in plain view of the houses on the hills above the flood, where thousands could only watch, without the power of rendering any assistance. This, in brief, was the situation when the telegraph flashed the news to sixty millions of sympathizing people of our own land, while the ocean cables carried the news to the whole civilized world. It would be impossible, in this limited report, to more than briefly outline the awful scenes of that night. In the language of another, "to tell of the many incidents of love and devotion, courage and unselfishness, in that fearful night; to tell of the filial affection that went down to death, rather than survive the parent it could not save; to tell of the motherly love that swept on to death with the children it would not desert; to tell of the faith that sang hymns of holy cheer, floating amid the terrors of that night down the waters into the arms of death, is but to repeat what in hundreds of papers has been told by correspondents and wept over by the nation's readers."

It was this that summoned Citizens' Meetings in all parts of this country, at many places in Europe, and even in far off Asia, this, too, voiced in the stirring appeal of the Mayors of the two cities, that called together the people of Pittsburgh and Allegheny in that now famous meeting at Old City Hall early Saturday morning, June 1st, 1889, a brief account of which will be found in the report of Treasurer Thompson.

As soon as the members of the "Citizens' Relief Committee" had been named at the meeting in Old City Hall, and while that meeting was yet in progress, they convened at the Chamber of Commerce, organized by the election of a Chairman and Secretary, appointed committees from within and outside of their number, to collect money, receive and ship donations of clothing, groceries, etc., to arrange for transportation both east and west by rail and river, to receive and house temporarily the homeless who would soon arrive from Johnstown, to receive, answer and direct the hundreds who were already offering their personal assistance for work here or in Conemaugh Valley, etc., etc. The flood of telegrams flowing in from all parts of the country, telegrams of sympathy, offers of aid, enquiries for friends in Johnstown, made necessary the immediate employment of a special operator, and a committee to respond. Systematic work began at once. It would gratify this committee to be able to name the various committees and the many generous and efficient helpers who relieved them during the first two weeks of much work both by day and night (for the main office at the Chamber of Commerce was for nearly thirty days kept open night and day), but space will not permit, and many names were never enrolled, as they deserved to be, among the workers. Two permanent committees, however, because of the very responsible and continuous work done by them, should have mention. I refer to the Committee upon Railroad Transportation and the distribution of supplies in the flooded district, composed of Messrs. James B. Scott, H. E. Collins, A. J. Logan, John Bindley and William Flynn, and that on the receipt, purchase and shipment of supplies of every sort, composed of S. S. Marvin, John Pontefract and Geo. W. Dilworth. The large corps of physicians, the Committee of Undertakers, and very many others, are perhaps equally deserving of personal and particular mention, but names and reports of service are not at hand, and I must forbear.

The haste in sending forward relief renders it impossible to fully report all of the supplies furnished by the Committee. It would afford it great pleasure to thank each individual and locality for the donations and labor, but the task is impossible. Night and day, every hour, and every moment, tens of thousands worked with a will all over the country, gathering and hurrying forward food, clothing, money, etc., while in the stricken valley other thousands with warm hearts and busy hands, were removing wrecks, rescuing the living, burying the dead, and comforting the dazed and sorrowing survivors.

The Western Union Telegraph Company, the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, and the Pennsylvania Railroad deserve especial mention. The whole service of all three was placed free at the disposal of this Committee; and while they had suffered in the great flood to the extent of millions of dollars, they seemed to forget all but suffering Johnstown. Some idea of the difficulty of supplying Johnstown can be had when we state that the nearest train could get only to Sang Hollow, four miles distant, whence food and supplies had to be carried on the shoulders of men, or hauled miles around over the mountains, and then for two days could not be sent across the swollen waters into the city proper. Rope ferries and improvised bridges were made as quickly as possible, when all were fed and relieved. In a single day 28,000 rations were furnished.

The statement of the Treasurer will show that the money received and disbursed for the direct aid of Johnstown reached the large sum of $831,295.62; add to this the value of the provisions, ready-made clothing, and necessaries of all kinds, and the total sum will easily reach one million of dollars, while perhaps three times that amount was sent to the Governor of the State, all the noble and spontaneous expression of sympathetic hearts of men, women, and children, poor and rich alike, in our Christian land and throughout the world.

And now at the end of eight months we find the survivors hard at work restoring as best they can their homes and property.

The dead who were hastily buried have been removed to a beautiful lot in "Grandview Cemetery" where, from the mountain height, may be seen the little river harmlessly winding its way through the valley of death.

The reports of Mr. William R. Thompson, Treasurer; of Mr. James B. Scott, the member of our Committee who took charge at Johnstown; of the Ladies' Relief Committee, and the resolution of our Committee explaining the reason for turning over the balance of money in its hands to the State Committee, are all herewith published.

With a full appreciation of the generous freedom with which you have given, and a gracious sense of the confidence you have placed in this Committee, we bespeak also your most generous criticism where we may have unintentionally failed wisely to bestow what you have so freely given. It has been a privilege rather than a task to discharge the duties thus laid upon us, and we, therefore, in our own behalf as well as that of the sufferers in Conemaugh Valley, return you our most hearty thanks.

Respectfully submitted,

WILLIAM McCREERY, Chairman.

STATEMENT.

The Citizens' Relief Committee, feeling that it is due to the public who had so largely made them the custodians of their gifts for stricken Johnstown, that some explanation should be made of the fact that they turned the larger part of the funds over to the State Commission appointed by Governor Beaver for final distribution, would make the following statement:

A very large proportion of the contributions from New York, New England, and the eastern part of the State had been sent direct to Governor Beaver. Other portions of our State than Conemaugh Valley had met with severe losses of life and property in the same great disaster, and after the pressing and immediate wants of each section had been met, it seemed to us that the harmonious action that had hitherto prevailed between both custodians of the fund would be made more efficient for the permanent relief of all parties if a joint committee were formed. The appointment of a State Commission, upon which Governor Beaver invited three of our most efficient workers, namely, Mr. James B. Scott, Mr. Reuben Miller, and Mr. S. S. Marvin to serve, met with the unanimous approval of our Committee, and we at once transferred four hundred thousand dollars of the funds then at our command to the Treasurer of the new State Commission.

This Committee, however, continued its weekly meetings, closing up as rapidly as possible the work still upon our hands, and hearing reports of the larger work of the State Commission from our representatives, the gentlemen above named. At a later date, September 21, 1889, we passed the annexed resolution, at the same time directing our Treasurer, Wm. R. Thompson, to transfer the additional sum of one hundred and sixty thousand dollars to the Commission.

Resolved, That this Committee, aware of the grave difficulties that have prevented a wise and equitable distribution, at an earlier date, of the funds at the disposal of the State Commission, and recognizing the care and labor bestowed by them in discharge of the onerous duties laid upon them, would hereby express their general and hearty approval of the manner in which their work has been thus far done. Discontent with the awards in some quarters is to be expected. It is impossible to please everybody. Criticism from the wise few who know just what should be done under all circumstances, will follow, as it has preceded their action, but the Commission can safely commit the final report of their work to the discriminate judgment of the generous donors whose gifts they have sought with sincere purpose wisely to disburse.

REPORT OF JAMES B. SCOTT, CHAIRMAN OF RELIEF CORPS, AT JOHNSTOWN.

WILLIAM MCCREERY, ESQ.,

Chairman Pittsburgh Relief Committee:

DEAR SIR:—At the meeting of your committee held at noon on Saturday, June 1st, 1889, a special committee was appointed to proceed to Johnstown and vicinity for co-operation in all matters connected with the terrible disaster of the day previous. Immediately upon appointment your committee was met by offers of personal assistance in the service about to be undertaken, which offers were accepted and the volunteers directed to meet within an hour at the Union Station of the Pennsylvania Railroad. Meanwhile the generosity of a great community manifested itself with a marvelous promptness and to such extent that by four o'clock P. M. of the day on which the intelligence of the fearful fate of the Conemaugh Valley had been made public a large train of provisions and clothing had been filled and stood ready for the word to start. The committee made immediate preparations, and held counsel with Mr. Pitcairn and Mr. McCrea, of the Pennsylvania Railway, who furnished every facility with an open order addressed "To all Employes" of the road to give all possible assistance to your representatives. About four and-a-half P. M. the train drew out from its position on Liberty Street and started out on its mission. Two passenger cars attached were filled with seventy-five ardent and resolute men, including members of all callings and professions who laid everything aside in the one purpose of advancing the work undertaken by the Pittsburgh Relief Committee. The Pittsburgh Department of Public Safety furnished a detachment of eighteen selected men from the police corps of the city, who accompanied the expedition. In the arduous task which fell to these volunteers, it is hoped that their patriotic and brotherly service will never be forgotten, rendered as it was under conditions of the most self-sacrificing character, with a devotion that never flagged, with the sole reward of consciousness of duty performed. On the way toward Johnstown the relief corps was divided into two companies, one of which was taken in charge by Capt. A. A. Logan and the other by Dr. H. E. Collins, with the understanding that in case of continuous work one company would relieve the other. Owing to the over-crowded condition of the railroad in consequence of the collection and retention of its numerous freight trains east of Pittsburgh, the progress of the relief train was naturally impeded so that it was not before ten o'clock on Saturday night when it drew up at the tower at Sang Hollow, four miles west of Johnstown. Further progress by the train was impossible for the reason that for a great distance around the long curve at Sang Hollow not a vestige of a railway remained, hardly even the location, as the raging flood had carried out rails, ties and for a distance even the ballast of the road. A visit to the tower found Mr. Thompson, of the railway, at the post he had been occupying all day, engaged in the difficult effort to transact the telegraphic business of the road over the single wire remaining of the large number generally in use, all of which but this one having been swept away by the flood, and even this minimum service was irregular and uncertain. Mr. Thompson heartily responded, but under the circumstances it was next to impossible to communicate with the city, where an anxious committee was known to be impatiently awaiting tidings from the relief corps. A rapid examination and inquiry into the immediate situation developed the fact that the great gap alluded to existed around Sang Hollow curve, while beyond for some distance the condition of the railway track was too perilous for passage by a locomotive. Meanwhile it had been ascertained by the use of the single wire, which had been temporarily strung around the mountain to the now famous stone bridge, that a locomotive and work train were standing on the track at a point near the bridge. Although the members of the crew had left their work for the night, they promptly responded to the message sent from Sang Hollow tower to the bridge asking them to move the train down the track west as far as it could safely proceed. During this time Companies A and B had each deployed men to ascertain what could be done in view of the fact of the intervening gap. The knowledge of the situation on the part of Mr. Dean, in charge of the railway forces, brought to the spot during daylight, was of the greatest service. A couple of ordinary hand cars belonging to the road were found east of the gap, in which vicinity was also found a quantity of lumber. A long improvised car was made by placing the boards on the hand cars, which were spread apart as far as the length of the lumber permitted. Meanwhile the loaded cars were policed and guarded from the tramps, which even then were heading for the devastated city. Two of the cars were opened, and the men of both companies, A and B, undertook the severe and unaccustomed labor of carrying on their shoulders the boxes, barrels and parcels containing food for their famishing brethren. These midnight trips over the rough and laborious way were repeated until nearly two car loads of provisions had been carried over the long gap and deposited at the further side, where the rude but serviceable car awaited its precious burden. Then repeated trips of this car were made over the uncertain track to the place where the men were waiting with the work train on which the goods were placed and which received the succeeding loads from the gap until the entire quantity carried over on the men's shoulders was placed on the train which, with Company A, under Dr. Collins, pushed on until it stopped at the stone bridge, where it arrived at 1.30 o'clock on Sabbath morning, whose light broke on one of the fearfulest and ghastliest sights ever looked upon or the imagination of Dante could have conceived. A region of horror and devastation, an earthly ante-chamber of Hell. Here further progress for the time was stayed. On the upper side of the bridge was the horrid jam which produced the great lake engulfing the town. The hideous mass, including so much that was inflammable, sending its fearful flames and dense smoke high towards the heavens. Beyond the bridge for a distance of eight hundred feet the heavy embankment of the railway had been washed entirely away, and the rushing river of indefinite depth whirled its way along past the abutment of the bridge. On the bridge the first consignment of provisions was unloaded, and even at that early hour the eager and apprehensive people had learned of the incoming relief and were awaiting its arrival. Distribution was immediately begun and in the shortest imaginable time was concluded. During the time when the midnight work of Company A was proceeding after the movement from the gap, Company B was awaiting the work of the railway company, which was being urged toward the securing of a temporary track for the passage of the relief train. Probably never in the history of corporations was there manifested such remarkable energy and intelligent direction as shown in the resurrection of the railways drowned by the appalling floods of May 31st. Even under such an unexpected and terrible blow the great company, whose remaining facilities were placed at the command of the relief corps, did not hesitate for a moment but summoned the resources of its western terminus and those of its allies with such promptness and success that during the day following the flood all necessary supplies of timber, rails and material, with a complement of men, were placed upon the ground. During all that Saturday night while the work of the relief corps proceeded as described, the operation of building a railway de novo around Sang Hollow gap was being conducted with a rapidity and skill nothing short of marvelous. When it was first announced that the track all the way to the bridge would be in shape sufficient to convey the train some time early on Sabbath forenoon, the statement could not be credited, but it resolved itself into the fact that between seven and eight o'clock A. M. the relief train pushed its way over the newly-made road and in a few minutes halted on the stone bridge. There, as has already been said, was the end of all immediate forward movement. Part of the train load was discharged at the bridge to await the earliest opportunity for sending across the torrent. The train was then backed and a large quantity of goods unloaded at Cambria City, the first station west of Johnstown, from which point not only the citizens of the place but those of Minersville and the immediate outlying districts were provided with food. The train was then brought back to Morrellville, two miles west of Johnstown, which was found to be the best point for general distribution to the greatest number of places in the flooded district. Almost a dozen towns, and even the district of Johnstown, known as Kernville, were all relieved from Morrellville by wagon. The topography of the general locality must be known to understand the propriety of such a point for so general distribution. On Sunday morning a stout rope was swung over the river at the stone bridge and by this means many of the boxes and packages of food were taken over to the section in which is located the Pennsylvania Railroad station. A messenger from Johnstown proper brought word that General Hastings, Adjutant-General of the State, had been in the neighborhood at the time of the flood and was yet in Johnstown at the railroad tower near the station, but of course without supplies or resources of any kind. The rope alluded to was, in the earlier part of Sunday, doing its duty, and on it the Pittsburgh policemen were sent over with instructions to report to General Hastings, in view of the great number of tramps and suspicious persons pouring toward the town from apparently all the points of the compass. Mayor Pearson, of Allegheny, sent on the same day a detachment of ten efficient police, who were retained for service between Morrellville and the bridge. On Sunday afternoon a swinging bridge was secured over the chasm and, while precarious, was a great advance over the rope. On Monday Capt. Clark, of the Mayflower, brought up a number of boats by which a floating ferry was established over the Conemaugh to Johnstown proper, and which proved of the most valuable assistance. On this same day (Monday) the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, with remarkable energy, effected a completion of its track into Johnstown proper. The Western Union Telegraph Company, on same date, furnished a special wire to the headquarters of the committee at Morrellville, when instructions were sent to Pittsburgh to have all provisions for Johnstown itself sent via B & O. Railway, which was done with promptness and success. Meanwhile the location at Morrellville continued to prove a valuable depot for supplies and an admirable point for distribution. The Pennsylvania Railroad forwarded rapidly the great number of cars which were being collected at and sent on through Pittsburgh from all parts of the country. The distribution was energetically conducted day after day, and it is safe to say that from the dawn of that first Sabbath after the flood not a single person went hungry to bed in all that region. During Saturday, the day succeeding the disaster, the usual domestic supplies of food in possession of the citizens unharmed by the flood, sufficed for the wants of all, while the prompt receipts of provisions through the relief committees drove away all fear of famine and starvation. At this early day, namely Monday, large bodies of men, mainly in charge of Hon. William Flynn and the late Capt. W. R. Jones, of Braddock, began to arrive, and also delegations in charge of managers and superintendents of many manufacturing concerns in the general vicinity of Pittsburgh, all with the purpose of attacking and destroying the terrible mountains of debris collected in the lower sections of Johnstown and in Kernville. The principal part of Johnstown had been left in the condition of a desert, a vast plain covered with sand and dirt which had been brought down the valley by the rushing waters and deposited to an average depth of many feet on the acres previously covered by closely built houses and shops, not a vestige of which remained to show former location or existence. The enormous quantity of material composing the hundreds and even thousands of structures, and including the extensive mills of the Gautier Company and the round houses of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Conemaugh, with numberless houses along the track of the torrent above, was swept over the plain and gorged at the stone bridge forming the great dam alluded to, lodging the fearful mass over the lower and main sections of Johnstown and Kernville, filling the streets with all manner of wreckage as high as an ordinary house, and in which were imprisoned numberless bodies of men, women and children, with those of horses, cattle and all kinds of animals. To the apparently hopeless work of clearing this fearful valley—not of the shadow—but of death itself, were applied the labors of the men brought for the purpose, and under the intelligent and skillful direction of the leaders alluded to, the work went on rapidly. Between six thousand and seven thousand men were thus employed, whose maintenance and equipment were supplied through the Pittsburgh Relief Committee.

The unparalleled generosity of the nation about this time changed in the character of the gifts. Money was substituted for food and clothing which were thenceforth to be purchased and forwarded through the committee. At this time the number depending upon the Pittsburgh Relief Committee for their daily bread was about twenty-eight thousand, not a soul of whom lost a single meal unless through personal neglect to apply. On Tuesday, June 4th, a mass meeting of the citizens of the valley was held, when it was determined to appoint a person to be clothed with plenary powers in all matters pertaining to the affairs of the valley. The history of the days ensuing between that date and the time when the State assumed direction of the work by arrangement with Governor Beaver, includes the statement of work of the character already described, and also that of the general supervision and direction of the affairs of the committees represented at the meeting mentioned above. A citizens' organization had already been formed, or attempted, but the distressing circumstances in which every one found himself—confronted by death on all sides, home destroyed, family sundered, each hour adding certainty to dread as to the fate of near and dear ones—united to paralyze every effort for joint efficient action. The attempts in this direction were even frustrated by such facts as the subsequently ascertained death of many of the appointees. At the same time, even in the face of so discouraging a situation, important headway had been made by a committee under the chairmanship of Mr. A. J. Moxham, of the near town of Moxham, who came into Johnstown and rendered excellent service at the peril of his already impaired health.

The action of this Citizens' Committee was immediately inquired into, and with the aid of such persons as could be consulted at intervals other committees were appointed to proceed under the general direction and control authorized by the citizens' meeting on Tuesday, June 4th. These committees were: Finance, Morgue, Commissary, Supplies, Teams, Removal of dead animals, Removal of general debris, Dangerous buildings, Police, Outside search for Dead, Transportation and information, Hospitals, Fire Department, Sanitary, Employment, Registration, Valuables, Time-keeping and books, Department of Public Safety, combining military, local and special police under Adjutant General Hastings.

The report of these various committees accompany this report and you are referred to them for the details of work and results in the various departments. The general sanitary work was placed under the immediate supervision of Doctors Lee and Groff, of the State Board of Health, who were on the ground early in the morning of June 2d, and whose report also accompanies this paper. These gentlemen continued to give this exceedingly important work their unceasing attention for weeks and months after the flood, and it is largely to their skill and devotion that Johnstown was spared even the suggestion of an epidemic. They had exclusive charge of the water-ways in the name of the State, under whose authority all work in the rivers was prosecuted. The great jam at the stone bridge, after several attacks by uninvited amateurs, was taken in hand definitely and skillfully by Major Wm. M. Phillips, through orders of Adjutant-General Hastings in the name of the State. Under his intelligent direction the great mass rapidly dissolved and the stone bridge jam became a thing of the past. All the committees named gave to their duties an earnest and active attention, performing their labors under circumstances of the most discouraging and painful character within the dreadful shadows of personal bereavement and public distress, while the special duties of some can be readily imagined to be exceedingly revolting, particularly to unaccustomed eyes and hands. In this connection it may be well to allude to the extent and character of the care of the dead. All bodies found at any point were promptly taken in charge at one of the eight morgues established at various points in Johnstown and vicinity. From the report of Rev. Dr. Beale, Chairman of the Morgue Committee, there had been cared for up to June 11th a total number of fifteen hundred bodies, and, as found from subsequent frequent examination of graves the work has been of the most satisfactory and thorough character. The number of bodies found subsequent to June 11th was very large. It is difficult to determine the total number of deaths in the Conemaugh Valley, nor will it ever be accurately ascertained, but from the most careful examination of the subject, separated from the wild guesses and unfounded speculation of the subject, it is probable that the loss of human life in the valley in consequence of the flood, will approximate twenty-five hundred, a truly fearful number to be swept out of existence without warning or preparation. The destruction of life of domestic animals was very great. No necessity existed for keeping an account of these, but an energetic committee worked incessantly in the interest of the health of the community, destroying effectually every carcass by cremation; not a single one found was disposed of in any other manner, except a very few at inconvenient points which were thoroughly buried. Nothing was allowed to be thrown into the streams, but everything deleterious to the public health was absolutely destroyed. Not only was the immediate population of Johnstown and vicinity deeply interested in this, but those larger populations of the great cities below. It is impossible to refer in detail to the separate work of all the committees—though highly important—but the designation of each as given will suggest its distinctive duty. It would be interesting, if practicable in a report which cannot possibly embrace all details of a work so extensive in its range, to narrate the development and approach to comparative perfection of the different departments of the general plan. One of the most important was the Commissary, which was begun in Johnstown proper at the beginning under the most difficult and trying circumstance, through the immediate supervision of Mr. John Thomas and Captain Kuhn, who continued their services after the change of Tuesday, June 4th. All cars came to Pittsburgh in such immense numbers, and both the railways were in such condition, that it was simply impossible to secure knowledge of trains en route or of the material contained. What this all meant, with over twenty thousand of a resident population depending for their daily bread on the exertions of the Commissary Department can hardly be imagined. There was no time to stop and sympathize. It was not “to labor and to wait,” but to labor and continue, feeding with one hand and straightening out a system with the other until at last from chaos and confusion there arose with comparative rapidity regulation and order, through which every person in the valley was able to anticipate their recurring meals with as much certainty and precision as though the method had been the rule of their lives.

It is proper here to refer to the fact that the police control of the entire district was so effective that not a single case of assault or injury occurred, nor was there the slightest foundation for the many wild stories of hangings and lynchings, or of mutilation of dead bodies. Life in the Conemaugh Valley was as secure as in any city in the land. In connection with the progress of the work at Johnstown, it is gratifying to acknowledge the numberless and wide-spread offers of aid sent in from every section of the country. Prominent among the beneficent acts, and very early in the history of the case, was the furnishing of a large number of tents by Governor Foraker, of Ohio, which were sent forward in care of Adjutant-General Axline and which proved of the greatest service through their immediate utilization. Personal service of every character was offered, and when it could be, accepted. The prudence of the great majority of persons in inquiring in advance was specially commended, particularly in view of the fact of the overcrowded condition of the place and the difficulty of making provision for those already there. Many well-meaning persons came to Johnstown with the best intentions but with poorly digested plans. Many consignments of goods and donations of money were accompanied by delegations in charge who were bound to see their material handed "direct to the people" and went away with well-satisfied consciences, unaware to the present day that their good intentions generally miscarried, and that their contributions of cash and clothing usually fell into the hands of the same "rounders" who were constantly on the alert for the opportunities presented through such visitors and who were unable to deceive those in official charge, the same persons usually receiving the cash and goods of these various delegations. The amount of cash distributed through private agencies to undeserving persons in the well-meant endeavor to do good was very great, and was even frequently persisted in after notice as to the true character of recipients, but in many cases the money was handed over to the responsible financial custodians as soon as the facts were made known to the bearers of funds. The work of many societies, guilds and agencies cannot be estimated. An enormous amount of money was brought into the valley through such means and the personal services of their representatives cannot be too highly commended. Such societies as the "Children's Aid" from each end of the State, the "Red Cross" under Miss Barton, and many others contributed to the general end of benefit to the sufferers. Another feature of the situation was the appearance in large numbers of individuals who knew so much better what should be done than those in charge, who could even have prevented the whole occurrence had they been consulted. Commissions from persons high in various authority were in some way secured and presented by very ordinary people, who seemed grieved that their individual self-importance was not respected and who usually retired with the determination to get even with those who were so obtuse as not to recognize their claims to attention. These persons were fortunately few in number but served the purpose of bringing a smile to faces surrounded with gloom and distress and may therefore be pardoned.

On Sunday, June 9th, 1889, Gov. Beaver reached Johnstown with members of the relief committee from Pittsburgh. On that afternoon a general consultation was held, when it was determined by the Governor that the State of Pennsylvania should assume the responsibility for continuance of the work after the evening of Wednesday, June 12th, 1889, relieving the Pittsburgh Relief Committee, with the understanding, however, that the committee would continue to co-operate with State officials as long as necessary in such matters as the procurement of supplies in which it had such large experience and facilities. In accordance with this arrangement the army of laborers continuously at work under the direction of Hon. William Flynn, was disbanded and paid off on Wednesday, June 12th, the account of time and individual pay of every man having been brought promptly up to the last hour by the labors night and day of the Accounting and Time-keeping Department under charge of Capt. Breck and Mr. Ford. This latter department made little public show or demonstration but was of great importance. A very large amount of money was involved, and care, accuracy and attention were requisite in the highest degree. The system employed by Mr. Flynn in his large business operations was availed of in this connection and aided greatly in the settlement of the amounts which were disbursed without confusion, disturbance or dispute. A day or two more was spent in Johnstown by your representatives with the view to assist the State authorities by fuller explanation of the methods and agencies thereto employed, and at the early hour of one A. M., Friday, June 14th, the special car furnished by the Baltimore & Ohio Railway delivered in the station at Pittsburgh the remaining members of the relief corps which the Pittsburgh Relief Committee had sent out on Saturday, June 1st, 1889.

It would be improper to conclude this report without special mention of the courtesies of the officials of the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Baltimore & Ohio Railway, who afforded your representatives the fullest facilities in their power. Mr. Patton, Superintendent of the Baltimore & Ohio Railway provided your staff at Johnstown a special car, fully equipped with every accommodations, including a daily supply of food sent regularly from Pittsburgh by express.

REPORT OF THE LADIES' RELIEF COMMITTEE.

Tuesday, June 4th, the Chairman of the Citizens' Relief Committee sent word to a number of ladies to meet at 10 A. M., at the Chamber of Commerce in order to provide for survivors coming from Johnstown. About twenty were present representing Pittsburgh and Allegheny.

These ladies at once organized by appointing an executive committee, consisting of Mrs. H. C. Campbell, Mrs. George A. Kelly and Mrs. William McCreery: also committees for supply, dining room and clothing departments, with Mrs. J. B. Herron, Mrs. E. A. Graff and Mrs. C. M. Donnell, as chairmen. These ladies had authority to add new members to their committees at discretion, and all were requested to report at once at the Second Presbyterian Church, the use of which had been kindly offered for this service.

By noon Mrs. McCreery presented a list of hospitals and benevolent institutions ready to take care of flood sufferers, and at four o'clock the tables in the church rooms were spread, a hot meal ready, and lavish supplies of food and clothing were pouring in. It is impossible to give any idea of the lavish generosity of the people, not only in the first excitement but extending for weeks.

On Wednesday a Bureau of Information was formed with Mrs. Dr. A. Easton, as chairman. What had promised to be a temporary shelter had become the haven for many weary ones, making it necessary to enlarge the plan of work. Two more members were added to the executive committee, as treasurer and secretary: Mrs. James B. Scott and Mrs. Wm. R. Thompson.

Belated trains made it necessary to keep open all night and in each department the committees were sub-divided for duty. A telephone was put up in the church by the kindness of the telephone company. The train committee which met all arrivals from Johnstown at the station was greatly assisted by Messrs. H. C. Bair, N. Wylie Stevenson, J. G. Bennett, Mr. Gaither and Mr. C. S. Shoemaker, particularly at midnight and three A. M. Thanks are due these gentlemen with many others who by day and night conducted refugees to the church, where a hot meal with soup and coffee awaited the sufferers, then a complete outfit was provided—shoes, underwear, dresses, coats, hats combs, soap, towels, &c. Afterwards the name and particulars were entered in the register and given twice daily to the press, which acted as a public directory and was invaluable in assisting the relief work. The Bureau of information wrote their letters to anxious relatives, searched for lost ones and helped to unite broken families. Hundreds of postal cards were sent and many heavy hearts relieved to know that the lost were found. Then an omnibus carried them, with their outfits in heavy paper bags, to temporary quarters where they were welcome to stay until friends came, or railroad passes and money took them to their destination; some as far west as Nebraska, Wyoming or Oregon, and from Tennessee to Canada. The railroad companies vied with other corporations in generosity, sending passes on the written request of the executive committee.

In fifty days two thousand and eight (2,008) persons were cared for by the four departments: food, clothing, registry and inquiry.

Six hundred applications to adopt children were received and placed in the hands of the Children's Aid Society.

After ten days the ladies felt that the regular church work was sadly obstructed by the various departments, and, thanking the trustees for their hospitality, accepted the offer from Dr. A. H. Norcross of the Eighth Street Methodist College. Here daily the committees continued to receive, investigate, clothe, entertain and forward the parting guest. This continued until June 24th, at which time the mass of material sent to Pittsburgh from all parts of the country to Johnstown seemed almost undiminished although the laborious work of sorting and outfitting had been carried on by a most efficient force.

The citizens committee requested us to exchange the hospitable college for the Exposition building, which contained the stores of bedding, groceries, some furniture, hundreds of old shoes, a dress suit, worn out liveries, a ball gown, white kid gloves and other donations—a motley collection, carefully assorted and labeled by the Messrs. Roenigk, Cain and their assistants. Here fifty machines were set at work by tireless women, who for several days each week made up sheets, table-cloths, towels, &c., by thousands. The sewing machine companies offered to give machines to sufferers at a very low figure, which was paid out of our funds in special cases.

There was now no necessity for serving meals to the survivors, all were furnished with family supplies, including groceries, flour, bedding, &c., and orders given for furniture.

The end of July closed the daily service of this section of relief work. Only thirty-four boxes remained, which were refilled with winter clothing and lately sent to Johnstown. All of donations were acknowledged in cases when the address was given. Most of the packages however, were sent anonymously to "Johnstown Sufferers Pittsburgh Committee" and to the donors we hereby return our thanks.

Of the survivors who came to Pittsburgh many were widows with young families, the bread-winner having been drowned. Some of these have been visited and cared for ever since.

To gain some approximate idea of the work accomplished during our fifty days service, a few facts may be offered: 114,967 garments were distributed. When the persons were endorsed by responsible parties, clothing was furnished for the absent members of the family, About fifty people were fed daily for three weeks and yet the entire expenses of the supply and dining room departments were only $80.67.

To quote from Mrs. Herron's report, which we regret cannot be printed in full: "When it became necessary, in order to prevent waste to restrain the people from giving, it seemed like defrauding them of a precious privilege, so sympathizing and anxious were all to assist. The supplies were sent in many cases without the names of the donors. No one witnessing the outpouring of good things could fail to be inspired with the unostentatious charity which had no desire to be recognized. Among the largest contributors of table supplies were J. B. Beilstein, who gave quantities of meat and an open order for anything needed in his line; Messrs. Wilson of the Seventh Avenue Hotel, and Gill of the St. Charles; Craig and Braham with many others made liberal donations of meat; Mr. Dimling gave bread; Messrs. G. K. Stevenson & Co. and Arbuckle & Co. gave coffee; the Chartiers Creamery sent firkins of butter; and R. A. Martin milk. Jellies, pickles, fruit, cakes and vegetables were sent in daily." Lunch baskets were sent to the church filled with good things ready for those about to take long journeys, including comb, wash towels and other toilet articles.

Special mention should be made of the hospitality offered by Allegheny institutions, Emanuel Episcopal Church, the Presbyterian Theological Seminary, the Helping Hand Rooms and the Home for the Friendless, where Mr. Jarboe, Mrs. Rev. Dr. T. H. Robinson, Miss Kate McKnight, Miss Matilda Denny, and their eager assistants were ready for the omnibus full of people by day and night for two weeks. The hospitals gave every possible service, and the church sewing societies of every denomination sent dozens of newly made garments. Social engagements were forgotten, and the stirring times recalled the work of the Sanitary Commission during the war—a quarter of a century ago. There is not space to tell of the strange and awful experiences with the demented, the widowed, the orphaned ones. The sight of a clean bed or cheerful table once more would flood the dazed mind with a new sense of loss.

It is hopeless to try to mention all of those who labored for weeks In His Name: The Marys and Marthas co-operated bravely each doing what she could—be it sorting old clothing, writing letters, serving tables, nursing babies or comforting the distressed; each modestly striving to manifest her loving sympathy for those who had suffered so fearfully. Their names, altho' not recorded here, are all known to Him, who will say to them in that day "Come ye blessed of my Father; I was naked and ye clothed me; hungry and ye fed me."

TREASURER'S REPORT.

WM. MCCREERY, ESQ., President Johnstown Relief Committee.

Sir:—There are two floods suggested by the thought of Johnstown. The first swift, pitiless, never to be adequately described, and giving a profound significance to those solemn words—"Thou carriest them away as with a flood." The second, a great wave of human sympathy and magnificent generosity.

The first destroyed, the second built up. The heart of the people was touched and responded so grandly, that it may justly be said, no greater work was ever recorded in the history of beneficence than the world's work for the relief of Johnstown.

Old City Hall, the place of the people consecrated by great deeds, is rich in historic associations. To these was added the Citizen's Meeting, held Saturday June 1st, which those present will not soon forget. The quiet assembling, the prompt organization, the brief earnest statement by Supt. Pitcairn, the call for contributions, then the eager crowding of men to the foot of the platform calling out donations, holding aloft checks, drafts, bank-notes, promises to pay written on all sorts of scraps of paper. Every question of creed, color, race, or condition in life, was forgotten, as each man strove with generous rivalry to get his contribution in first. Some idea of the spirit of the occasion may be had from the fact that the first hour's offerings averaged one thousand dollars per minute in cash.

But the rush at Old City Hall was only the first dash of the tidal wave. The Executive Committee, while fitting out train-loads of provisions and clothing, had telegraphed the Mayors and Boards of Trade of all the principal cities of the country, calling for donations in cash or merchandise. It was announced in the evening papers by the ministers of the two cities that collections would be taken up in the churches the next day. Monday morning brought a veritable storm of remittances by letter and telegram, while the churches and Sabbath-schools brought in their collections of pennies, silver of every denomination, bank-notes and checks, in cigar-boxes, bags, papers, handkerchiefs, and in one instance, the traditional "stocking." It was an accumulation of miscellaneous collections, such as no fastidious teller would ordinarily take over his counter; but it held the little child's penny, the widows' mites, as well as the gifts of those "that did cast in of their abundance," and for the sake of the cause was taken gladly, receipted for, and set aside, to be counted by the force of cashiers and tellers of other banks, who volunteered their services, and who worked far into the night clearing and accounting, as far as possible, for each day's accumulations before beginning the next. Briefly stated, it required the services of from eight to ten rapid workers from 7.30 P. M. until midnight, for six consecutive nights, before the work was thoroughly under control. "Why not organize a bank and hire the necessary help?" Simply because men qualified to handle money are not to be hired in an emergency, and this was no time to experiment with trust funds.

Yet the cash contributions were only one feature of the work. Stockmen gave cattle; Minneapolis, flour; Chicago and Kansas City, grain and fresh meat; Cleveland and Detroit, lumber and chairs; Savannah, tar and rosin; lanterns, lime, log chains, fish, whiskey, oil, disinfectants, groceries of every kind, tobacco, snuff, cigars, stoves, dishes, hardware, books and a poem to be sold; even the little children sent their dolls and playthings—time would fail to tell of what came. It was Emerson's teaching carried into practice, every man gave of that which he had. At Old City Hall busy men and women were organized into departments, receiving, assorting and sending off boxes and bundles of clothing, bedding, blankets, boots, shoes, hats, etc., etc., which were coming in from every part of the country. A strange medley it was. The great bulk of the donations were of articles sweet, clean, new and appropriate. But what an opportunity it afforded for a garret-ridding benevolence; nevertheless everything was accepted in the spirit of charity.

Down Liberty avenue and Water street the Pennsylvania Railroad and Baltimore & Ohio moved empty cars, which were promptly filled, and as promptly sent out. The Western Union Telegraph Company placed its wires at the disposal of the committee. Business in the two cities was practically suspended, men talked only about the calamity or devised means to get supplies to the distressed. "How much like war times it was!"

Four thousand men, properly equipped and under the command of Hon. William Flynn and the late Capt. William R. Jones, were sent into the valley to bury the dead, remove debris and render the place habitable for the survivors. These laborers, with the number of names which appear on the Johnstown pay-rolls, the men sent from Beaver Falls, and those from the National Tube Works, McKeesport—whose expenses in the former case were paid by the local relief committee, and in the latter, by the workmen at the works—make a total of nearly ten thousand men. Add to these the number of survivors dependent upon the commissary for subsistence and you have an army to be fed, clothed and sheltered. This will appear from the fact that 28,000 rations were issued in one day. The work of purchasing and forwarding supplies having assumed such proportions, Messrs. S. S. Marvin, Geo. W. Dilworth, and John Pontefract, were appointed a committee in charge of this work.

It was not long before complaints were made that the money sent had not been contributed for sanitary measures, but for the relief of the sufferers. At this point—June 12th—Governor Beaver assumed control of the work, and the Citizen's Committee instructed its Treasurer to proceed at once to Johnstown and pay off the men it had sent there. It was estimated that $110,000.00 would be needed to do this. Here a new difficulty arose. The Express Companies, having lost their offices by the flood, would not be responsible for money after the arrival of the train in Johnstown. Express safes were not to be had. A hasty meeting of the committee was held—the Treasurer was authorized to assume the risk, and to take such steps as were necessary to carry out the work. A pay-car was secured; the bags of silver and packages of bank-notes laid on the floor for a bed, and at 9 P. M., the party left via the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, with Messrs. H. I. Gourley and C. B. McVay, as assistants, guarded by Assistant Superintendent O'Mara, Inspector McAleese and three officers, arriving at Johnstown ten hours later. There, under military protection, after two days' work the great majority of the men were paid, besides some others who at first had offered their services gratuitously.

On July 26th the Committee transferred to the credit of the Flood Relief Commission the sum of $400,000.00, to be distributed in the Conemaugh Valley; and on September 28th the additional sum of $160,000.00 was placed to the same account, making a total of $560,000.00.

The work having been turned over to the Commission, at your request the Mayor of Chicago, the Governors of Ohio and Michigan sent representatives to audit the accounts, and Col. William P. Rend, of Chicago; Auditor-General H. A. Axline, of Ohio, and Hon. John K. Boies, of Detroit, with Controller E. S. Morrow, of this city, completed the work. In their report which follows, you will notice that all the moneys received by your Committee were expended in the work of relief. The necessary office expenses, clerk hire, etc., amounting to <sup>over $1000</sup> ~~$681~~, having been defrayed privately.

In concluding this report, the Treasurer begs leave to acknowledge his indebtedness to the following gentlemen, without whose prompt and generous aid, it would have been impossible to have carried on the work: Messrs. David Robinson, H. I. Gourley, John A. Harper, C. B. McVay, Frank C. Hutchinson, William Montgomery, John D. Fraser, Walter P. Fraser, Charles M. Gerwig, William F. Church, J. D. Lyon, Prof. A. E. Frost, John T. Woods, Capt. William McClelland, James S. Bell, Andrew W. Herron, Fred. Rinehart, Charles Farrar, William Fleming, Joseph Bollman, Charles H. Book, Thomas C. Griggs, Robert C. Johnston, C. F. McCombs, S. M. McElroy, R. L. McLean, M. Y. Robertson.

Thanks are due also to the press, which so materially advanced the cause by its patient, accurate work, in giving to the public, daily, the names of contributors, and the amounts given.

One more word. Your Committee may well express to the world a sense of gratitude for the confidence reposed in it. Nearly, if not altogether, one million of dollars in cash and merchandise passed through its hands. This, with the great sums sent to Governor Beaver and to Johnstown direct, the self-denial and unrecorded toil of numbers of men and women all over the land, refute the pessimistic assumption that generosity and personal sacrifice are not realizable ideals. Crises quicken the heroism latent in human hearts, and some compensation for the Johnstown disaster will be derived from the exercise of those great and benevolent impulses which never fail to spring flower-like from such calamities.

Respectfully submitted,

WILLIAM R. THOMPSON,
Treasurer.

AUDITOR'S REPORT.

A short time since the Governors of the States of Ohio and Michigan and the Mayor of Chicago were requested by the Pittsburgh Citizens' Committee for the relief of the Johnstown flood sufferers, to appoint a Commission to examine the accounts of the moneys received and disbursed by them. The undersigned Commission, appointed in response to this invitation, having made a careful inspection of the books, vouchers, bills, checks and various other documents pertaining to this relief account, presented by Mr. Wm. R. Thompson, Treasurer, to whom was entrusted the sole care and custody of all funds forwarded to and collected by this Committee, have to report the following condensed exhibit of receipts and disbursements:

The receipts as given above only show the money contributions which passed through the hands of this Committee. Large quantities of clothing, provisions and other supplies purchased by State and local committees were forwarded to the flood sufferers through this agency. Many, if not all the States in which credits appear in this report, also sent large contributions of money and supplies to the Governor of the State of Pennsylvania for distribution through the Commission appointed by him.

Receipts, accompanied by detailed bills for every item composing the expenditures above given, were exhibited to the Auditing Commission, by the Treasurer, giving complete evidence of the accuracy and thorough system that characterized the disbursements of the money confided to the Citizens' Relief Committee.

In connection with our endorsement of the financial report submitted to us, it may not be inappropriate to briefly refer to the history and to certain of the prominent features of the magnificent work performed by the Pittsburgh Committee.

* Transferred to Sub-Treas Governor's Commission

Immediately after the first sad news of the dreadful disaster that swept into eternity thousands of lives and that spread ruin and desolation throughout the Conemaugh Valley had been flashed across the wires, a mass-meeting was called by the Mayors of Pittsburgh and Allegheny to give expression to the sentiments of sorrow universally felt throughout the country and to adopt immediate and effective measures for the rescue and relief of the suffering survivors. At this mass-meeting this Relief Committee was selected from among the leading and most highly esteemed citizens of Western Pennsylvania.

The gentlemen chosen to conduct this noble mission of charity in every instance occupy positions of prominence in the great industrial and commercial enterprises of their city. It would be superfluous to allude to this fact where these gentlemen are so well and favorably known, but as contributions have come to them from tens of thousands in distant parts of the country it is believed to be not out of place to make this favorable comment.

On the 1st of June, the day after the disaster, the labors that confronted this Committee were of indescribable magnitude. The people left surviving at Johnstown and elsewhere in the stricken region were totally isolated from the outside world. Railway and telegraphic lines on either side of Johnstown were scattered and carried away for many miles in the general ruin. As soon as communication could be established in a temporary way, this Committee at once pushed forward provisions for the sustenance of the living and coffins and caskets for the burial of the dead. In every way they directed and performed the work of relief with intense energy and most zealous devotion.

As soon as possible the general committee appointed sub-committees to organize, control and guide the various departments of the dispensation of relief, such as the recovery and decent interment of the dead, the furnishing of food and raiment to the 30,000 destitute survivors, the clearing of debris from the public streets, and the erection of temporary shelter and of permanent homes. All this vast work of benevolence was faithfully and thoroughly done. From the time of the advent of this Committee at Johnstown no one has been allowed to suffer for food or other essential necessities of life.

In fine, the undersigned Commission feel certain that the sacred mission of charity confided to the Citizens' Committee has been performed with a noble fidelity that entitles the gentlemen composing this Committee to the gratitude of the entire people of the Conemaugh Valley, and also to the thanks of all who sent their contributions to aid in relieving the effects of this terrible calamity.

TO THE READER.

This Report comprises individual contributions from one penny up to fifteen thousand dollars, and is arranged alphabetically, rather than under the heads of trades or professions.

The church collections taken Sabbath, June 2d, under the head of Churches, and the contributions of workingmen, under the head of Employes, are the only attempts at classification.

The names and amounts sent in through the daily press will be found under the name of each paper.

The amounts received from other cities are entered in sums as they came, detailed statements of names of contributors and amounts given having been published by their local committees, as in the case of Chicago and other cities.

Notwithstanding the care taken to make this Report correct in every particular, errors in names and places may have crept in. One thing is sure, that every dollar received is here acknowledged, and as the Auditor's Report will show, accounted for in full. The expense of carrying on the work having been met privately.

Should any contributor not find his name recorded, let him recall the circumstances under which he gave, whether as "Cash," withholding his name, or through his church, club, secret organization, or daily paper.

It is regretted that this report (which is solely of the amounts received and expended by the Citizens' Committee), cannot embrace the list of moneys and goods raised in this city by the Americus Club, the Grand Army of the Republic, Masonic and other orders, which would easily aggregate an additional five thousand dollars contributed by the citizens of Pittsburgh and Allegheny.

DONATIONS.

It is a matter of regret that this list is not complete, many contributions of goods having been received and forwarded where the names of the donors were not given. This is especially true of the first train load of supplies made up on Liberty avenue early Saturday morning, June 1st, by the merchants, who contributed groceries, the citizens who brought clothing of every kind, and in many cases deposited their baskets of marketing. In the eager desire to help, there was no thought of having their names or gifts recorded. Let those who gave and do not find their names here, recall the pressure of the time, and reflect that the secret pleasure of a generous act is to a great mind its own exceeding great reward.
